Happy Holidays

Melbourne's wonderful blend of people, beliefs, traditions and cultures means that, for most of us, this time has some links to holidays – whether for a couple of days relaxation at home, a week or two on a sandy beach, or full-blown bike ride across the Simpson Desert.

At the same time...

we must not forget nor ignore those will not have any kind of happy holiday - such as the homeless, the poverty-stricken, those who are isolated, the sick and disabled with little or no support, and of course there are more.

There are many ways to help, but if you want to find out more, please get a copy of the "Helping Out" booklet, published by Town Hall. You can pick up a free copy from the Front Desk at the Town Hall or take it off the City's website. It provides a list of free and cheap support services available from more than 70 sources. They include food, accommodation, health services, drug and alcohol services, legal advice and more. (www.melbourne.vic.gov.au, then follow the prompts to Community Services and then to Social Support).

THEN MARCH FORWARD TO 2010!

Actually, there is nowhere else to go, is there?

As usual there will be lots of speculation in the media and at the various levels of government about the new issues we will face. Good!

But usually, it is more important for us to find NEW solutions and approaches to tackle all the existing issues and challenges. We are not being cynical. We all know there are lots and lots of problems still left hanging over from year to year. In this issue we will look at some of them.

ADV-Alcohol, Drugs, Violence

"Isn't it self-evident that the laissez-faire provision of huge, extended hours drinking barns, strip joints and casino in the CBD would attract those from unserved metro fringe? I shudder as I see the long queues of vulnerable kids outside these ghastly premises. There is no way any of this would have occurred if the public had been consulted/had voted. It's dollar/liquor/gambling industry driven and the drunkenness and violence a predictable consequence - entirely at odds with the traditional Melbournian culture". (Letter in a Melbourne newspaper)

As you know we have at last achieved a long held aim – the publication of applications for liquor licenses on the Justice Department website: www.justice.vic.gov.au then click on the "Alcohol" link in the left panel then on "Alcohol and the Community".

Please keep your eye open for unsuitable applications and let us know.

Three city residents groups have come together to produce this newsletter – we encourage you to be active in your community and contribute to OUR NEIGHBOURHOOD.

UNBELIEVABLE!

Despite all the alcohol-fuelled violence, Minister Justin Madden's planning department approved a 750 patron bar in Docklands! Oh, he said I didn't know about it until my department was well into the approvals process. The classic defence – "Nobody told me! It wasn't my fault"!

This despite Government funded research finding that large venues and the proximity of venues appeared to be linked to street violence.

Hey Justin, we are DROWNINGnot waving!

Residents and business associations have been calling on the State Government to deal with the "booze city" problem. We have said that they MUST coordinate action throughout the whole chain of mess made by the heap of people with a finger in the pie – get the Police, the Liquor Licensing Director, the CAV, the Council, the licensees/venue owners, transport, residents, the education sector, and a couple of experts on alcohol and drug problems.

The Government is still fiddling while Melbourne drowns. They are recently responsible for new "nightclubs" for just under 3,000 people in Docklands and South Melbourne!

New Pillars of the business community

Two enterprising students with green business ideas are transforming city pillars into innovative business venues.

City pillars were originally built for selling newspapers and magazines but demand for newspaper stands has since fallen. The City of Melbourne set up the City Pillar Challenge to encourage local students' emerging business ventures which show originality, creativity, business vitality, and environmental sustainability.

The students, Josh Engwerda, from University of Melbourne, and Leyla Acaroglu, from RMIT, won the City of Melbourne's City Pillar Challenge.

They won cash prizes of $1200 each and street trading permits allowing them to trial the city pillars as business venues until 30 June next year.

From his pillar on the south-west corner of Swanston Street and Collins Street, Josh will be selling the Green Wall Garden, a hydroponics system which can be used to grow food plants in dense urban spaces such as high rise balconies and rooftops. Josh will also be marketing 'Seduberries', strawberries trained into the shape of a love heart. "Anyone can grow their own food in the city. I hope the 24-hour living display will allow everyone to escape from the concrete and asphalt world, if only for a brief moment each day," Josh said.

Leyla will use a city pillar on the north-west corner of Swanston Street and Collins Street for her business, Eco Innovators, promoting Melbourne's eco-conscious designers and artists.

Turning tables on thieves

ANTI-THEFT DEVICE

ANTI-theft hooks are being fitted to city café tables to foil bag snatchers.

Police and Melbourne City Council are rolling out the handbag hooks, a hit in Europe, after an explosion in thefts in the CBD.

Thefts that have traditionally been defined as "petty" – including bag, wallet, phone, laptop and iPod thefts – increased to 7527 in 2008-09, up 32 per cent.

That added up to $4.2 mil-

Crime stopper: one of the new handbag hooks.

lion in stolen goods, about $560 a theft.

About 500 of the hooks will be bolted to the edges of tables at DFO Spencer St.

Melbourne Central and Bourke St shopping strips.

Police spokesman Insp Paul Pottage said open cafes and areas near ATMs were hot spots for thieves, and people should protect their property vigilantly.

"There's any number of instances of people having a phone at their elbow who turn around to speak to a friend then it's gone," he said.

Lord Mayor Robert Doyle said the hooks were part of an anti-theft campaign run by the City of Melbourne and the force's Crime Prevention Unit.

A new look for New Year's Eve in the City

The increasing popularity of New Year's Eve in the City has prompted the City of Melbourne to separate the celebrations into two events in three different locations this year.

Last year's celebration drew a record crowd of 450,000 people to the city.

This year, Melbourne's Yarra Park and Docklands' Victoria Harbour will both have a New Year's Eve family event, with fireworks at 9.15pm.

In another change, the midnight fireworks event will extend along the Flinders Street corridor, from Spring Street to Docklands' Victoria Harbour, using rooftops as firing sites to maximise viewing opportunities across the entire city and beyond.

Unlike previous years' events, there will be no fireworks on barges on the Yarra River, so boat owners will be able to use the whole river as a viewing location for the first time in many years.

After analysing the New Year's Eve event with Victoria Police, the Department of Transport and public transport operators, the City of Melbourne decided that these changes were needed, to ensure the community's safety while allowing the event to grow.

Lord Mayor Robert Doyle said last year's record crowd numbers had made the council reconsider the best approach in accommodating families and revellers.

'The people of Melbourne love a great party and the council stage some excellent entertainment to bring in the New Year, but it is important to consider crowd safety and the important contribution families make in these celebrations,' the Lord Mayor said.

'It is a tradition for many families to head to the city to enjoy the magnificent fireworks and we have worked on a program that will allow families to enjoy the early evening without the crush of revellers hitting the city to count down to midnight.'

News from the Town Hall

Please look at the City website at www.melbourne.vic.gov.au regularly. What will you see? A great deal of information about the government of Our City.

One important thing is the dates of all the meetings of Council and its Committees in 2010. This is where much of the work is done which affects us all. Go to "Council and Committee meetings" on the website. Find the names and remits of each Committee, and make time to go to hear decisions made about matters that concern you, or simply to see how it is done! When you wish to attend, go to the Administration Entrance next to the MetCard shop; and the concierge will direct you. You can come and go at any time. It helps you hear what Councillors think on certain matters and how decisions are reached. The agenda and background papers for each meeting are on the website; and so are the minutes.

This system generally works well, so take advantage of it to keep up to date.

AND...

Try to visit the "Front Desk" area of the Town Hall (where you pay your Rates and your parking fines). Here you will find several racks of leaflets and booklets on a whole range of matters – suggested walks, "what's on in the City", advice on water usage, maps of the City and our parks and gardens, and more.

Spring Clean Your Building

Free Anti-graffiti Kits (available until 30 November): For a limited time, the City of Melbourne is inviting property owners and managers to apply for a free anti-graffiti coating kit to help you manage graffiti on your property. Once you apply it to a clean wall, the coating is designed to make it easier and quicker to remove any new graffiti which appears. The offer is available until the end of November.

For more information, visit the 'Environment and Waste' section of the website.

Do our mounted Police know this story? Not an unusual picture in Our City

One resident who tripped over such a "parked" bike, tells us a recent issue of the Guardian newspaper (UK) recalls that in the late 19th century the army had some soldiers carry out patrols on bicycles. They were effective because they were silent and fast. One "pukkah" cavalry officer said he hated them because, when the cyclists were attacked in large numbers, they simply threw their bikes in the middle of the road, where the spokes and wheels made a perfect obstacle to charging horses. The bikers would then take cover and pick off the struggling cavalry. The cads!

More Housing choices planned for City

The City of Melbourne has sold a building for a nominal amount so it can be redeveloped as affordable housing and a hub for the community.

The council sold the Drill Hall in Thierry Street, Melbourne, to Housing Choices Australia, which will redevelop the site as 59 affordable housing units and community facilities.

Housing Choices Australia works in partnership with governments, community groups and companies to provide appropriate and affordable social housing.

The City of Melbourne sold the building, estimated to be worth about $4.9 million, for $10. The council also committed to providing up to $1.25 million for the Drill Hall's refurbishment as a community hub.

The council's decision was driven by its commitment to creating a 'city for people' which includes accessible and affordable housing for all.

Planning for development of the site is well advanced and construction is expected to start in late 2009.

Graffiti Management Plan

The Council has developed a new Graffiti Management Plan for 2009-2013, subsequent to the State Government's Graffiti Prevention Act (June 2008), – you can see it on the www.melbourne.vic.gov.au website.

They list the different reasons why people put graffiti on walls etc:

- seeking recognition from their peers (especially relates to tagging);
- they are bored and want to do "something";
- they enjoy the thrill of the risk involved;
- as an outlet for artistic expression.

Statistics suggest that tagging is mostly done by teenagers, while street art, stencilling and slogan writing is generally the work of more mature people. Much of the latter is done with the property owner's agreement and Council approval.

Where graffiti is visible to the public, the Council must give a minimum of 10 days notice to a property owner of intention to remove graffiti. If such permission is not granted the Council cannot remove it.

The Council believes that the strongest public opposition is against tagging – and we would agree. The Council is keen to work with artists and property owners to clean up tagging where it defaces street art – suggesting an "adopt-a-wall" program where a team of artists will be responsible for cleaning up tagging and maintaining street art sites in good condition.

Our residents groups support this approach, and are working to ensure the removal of tagging on some walls with the aid of street artists, for example in Hosier Lane.

What's on?

UNTIL NEVER presents

Paul Sloan. Reverberations

Paul Sloan's works are wonderfully free and uncensored by any governing anxiety of the ravishing super-ego or self-consciousness. The images are from nature, from urban living, and they range over objects, vignettes 'scenes', the generic, the logo, the branded, the directly and very closely perceived.

Until Never is an independent gallery located in the heart of Hosier Lane in Melbourne Australia, presenting hot art from underground and overground, Australian and international artists. Until Never shows unrepresented, emerging, street, fine, experimental, conceptual, political art.

When: 18 November – 19 December 2009

The Toy Box

This summer the toys are going wild! Everyone has had an experience of childhood, which makes toys a particularly potent means of inspiring and informing memories of the past. Historical collections of our playthings provide an insight into the social, cultural and economic lives of children across the ages.

The Toy Box assembles toys that span the entire history of Melbourne, including dolls and soft toys, games and puzzles, and models and miniature toys. The exhibition provides a nostalgic journey for adults of all ages, and engages the children of today with the wonder and spectacle of yesteryear.

When: 9 December 2009 - 7 March 2010

Open: Open daily 10am–5pm and until 9pm Thursday

Where: City Museum (Spring Street – next to Parliament)

Calling Two Wheelers

The Council is conducting a survey to establish the feasibility of building a 'cycling superstation' in the City.

The stations would provide 'end of trip' facilities for cyclists who travel into the City, including a safe and secure shower, change/restroom and bike storage facility. Extra facilities will be determined by the results of the survey but could also include personal lockers, fresh towels, hairdryers, toiletries, valet service, bike maintenance and repair as well as retail facilities, such as a café and internet access, retail apparel and accessories, laundry and dry cleaning facilities.

Your FEEDBACK is important. Just fill in the survey on the Council website to help them find out if cyclists would use a 'cycling superstation' and what type of amenities it should include.

And another interesting idea?

It has been suggested to us that the City could cut out some street car parking spaces, and erect dedicated Bike Corrals in their place. What do you think?

HELP YOUR FRIENDSto get home after a visit to the City.

The Council's Safe City Taxi Rank Scheme aims to provide safe places for those waiting for a taxi, and for taxi drivers too. There will now be four such ranks

- 55 King Street, near Flinders Lane
- Flinders Street Station (Swanston St - being upgraded)
- 50 Bourke Street, near Spring Street
- 190 Bourke Street, near Russell Street.

The council will add six more such taxi ranks during the next four years.

The ranks are staffed by uniformed security officers distinct and are monitored by security cameras:

- from 11pm to 5am on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays
- and during special events such as the Australian Grand Prix and New Year's Eve.

Launch of new bike pod at City Square

Cycling to the city is about to get even easier, with the City of Melbourne and the Department of Transport providing a bike pod in City Square.

The bike pod's facilities include two self-contained showers, a basin, mirror, and changing space, with clothes hooks and a bench seat. For security, the bike pod has an automated door, with a time lapse. The bike pod has floor heating for comfort and drying as well as a stainless steel floor for hygienic purposes.

The bike pod, located in the City Square Car Park, 202 Flinders Lane, Melbourne, will be jointly opened by the State Member for Melbourne, the Hon. Bronwyn Pike, and the Lord Mayor Robert Doyle on Wednesday 11 November at 9.15 am. For further information contact the City of Melbourne on (03) 9658 9658 or visit our website: www.melbourne.vic.gov.au

Dear Residents,

Our People – Our Community - Our City

I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself to you all as the new Inspector for the Melbourne East and St Kilda Road Police Service Areas. As some may know, Inspector Chris Duthie took up a two year posting to the Solomon Islands and from his early reports he is doing well and enjoying the challenges that comes with it.

I have been in the position for a month and as you can imagine most of my time has been taken up in meeting the many and varied community groups, forums and committees that form part of our vibrant city. I have been impressed with the dedication and enthusiasm that these individuals and groups bring to our community and I look forward to working with them all over the coming years.

In this short update I thought it would be beneficial to give you some background on myself and a short vision that I have for my role. I bring to this position 25 years of operational policing experience within the city and inner city areas and as a Detective within the Crime Department (Homicide, Armed Offenders Squad and Organised Crime Squad). In 2003 I was appointed as a Senior Sergeant at the Melbourne East Police Station where I was first introduced to many involved in the Melbourne community. I am happy to see some familiar faces remain. I remained in the area as the Officer in Charge of the Melbourne Criminal Investigation Unit before completing a two year deployment to the Solomon Islands (purely coincidence that Chris Duthie is there now). Upon my return I have been involved in more of a strategic field as the Manager of the Victoria Police Safe Streets Project. Our team assessed the current policing strategies into public order/anti-social behaviour and developed papers on moving forward not only as an organisation but as a whole of community/ Government approach. Needless to say the work is ongoing and it is clear there is not one initiative or strategy that will solve all the issues associated with public order, however I have a firm belief that if we all work together as a community in roads can be made towards the cultural change that is required.

I am very much focused on community policing, with continual engagement with relevant stakeholders a key to this. The Police will always be at the forefront in regards to public order, security and safety, however it is not the police alone that can address all the issues, it is a problem for us all. I have commenced working with a small group of licensees on a collaborative approach to issues around our night time economy and I am encouraged by their enthusiasm and energy.

I thank you for the opportunity for this communication and once again I look forward to working with the community and updating you regularly on policing matters.

At Last!

Our State Government is giving real recognition to Australia's first World Heritage listed site - the Royal Exhibition Building and the Carlton Gardens. They are providing $5.3 million to remove the ugly car park on the west end of the REB, and reinstall heritage gardens based on the original nineteenth century design. We understand that these gardens were originally called "The German Garden". This is a great step forward. (Preliminary work has started and the site should be completed in February 2011)

And it is great to learn that there will be a water harvesting/storage system, including a 900,000 litre underground water-tank.

Dr Patrick Greene (Museum CEO) said that this will ensure a sustainable future for this magnificent landmark, and for the Carlton Gardens, preserving them for future generations.

The bus, truck and car-parking area (lower right) that has been a blight on the Gardens will soon be replaced with a more appropriate gardenscape.

The "Education Industry"

International students are great for our community, but our Governments have seen them only as "cash cows". We urge all our readers to assist and advise students when they can. As we noted in our last issue, it has been left to the Salvation Army to provide a safe place for students to relax.

After countless complaints and many visits to India by State and Federal Ministers – John Brumby even played cricket at the New Delhi University! And the most recent visitor has been the PM himself.

At long last some more sensible action – as The Age said on 13/11/09: "Dodgy private colleges that exploit foreign students will be closed down sooner and have their details made publicly available under changes aimed at restoring confidence in Victoria's beleaguered international education industry", says The Age (13/11/09)

Jacinta Allan, the State Minister for Skills and Workforce participation, said that as well as the amendments, the Government was reviewing registration and quality assurance provisions to ensure the regulator was "adequately equipped to register and otherwise deal with providers of training to domestic students". The amendments will give the regulator, the Victorian Registration and Qualifications Authority, the power to publish the reason for a college's suspension or cancellation.

Will this action be enough? Australia makes about $15 billion p.a. But as we said in our last issue many overseas students end up in "rogue colleges", with few facilities compare with those attending universities and recognised training colleges such as TAFE.

It is only after sudden "college" closures and the scandals of the attacks on vulnerable Indian and other students that there has been action by Government. Reminds us of those officials who, a few years ago, described reports of drunken violence on our streets as "a media beat-up".

A cyclist riding on the footpath in the CBD was asked why he did so. He said, "Why not?"

"Well for a start it is against the rules."

"Oh yes," he replied, "but rules are made to be broken!"

When asked if this applied to cars, trams and buses, he rode off ... still on the footpath!!!

Walking the Walk

In Britain, a total of 40,888 miles was walked nationally as part of a "Walk to Work Week" - the equivalent of walking 1.6 times around the world. These commuters managed to burn off the equivalent of 20,444 cupcakes and save 13,575kg of carbon. From Living Streets at www.livingstreets.org.uk

What is U3A?

It is The University of the Third Age, is an international organization based on life-long education for its own sake, in an atmosphere of mutual learning and teaching.

Each U3A is a learning community, organized by and for people best described as being active in retirement - the "third age" of their lives.

Melbourne has the oldest U3A in Australia, established as a result of a public meeting in July 1984. Currently it has over 800 members.

It is a self-funded, voluntary organisation formed to provide learning opportunities to members aged 50 plus who are retired or not working full-time. Courses cover a wide range of subjects. Details can be found on the website www.u3a.org.au. New members are welcome.

Concetta Rose is a well known textile designer.

Born Concetta Venuti (her father was Italian), she was raised in Cheshire and still carries that regional English brogue, after over 25 years in Australia.

At a very young age she won a scholarship to the Stockport School of Art, and went on to study textile design in Manchester and at the Royal College of Design in London. Concetta has spent her whole life designing for many leaders in such areas as fashion, furniture, wallpaper, and bedlinens. Her designs have filled the windows of Macy's and one advertisement for a well known Australian retailer even urged us to "Sleep in Style ... Sleep with Concetta".

Concetta loves living in Melbourne. She has lived in our CBD for over 21 years – BUT, in the last five years she has become concerned for her safety. Walking alone after dark is no longer an option since she had a frightening incident in which she was pushed around by silly drunks. But she can still be seen taking her cat for a walk around the City Square precinct (on a leash of course)! She tells how much she enjoyed life in the city when Mietta O'Donnell was alive and ran her restaurant and "lounge" in Alfred Place (which runs between Collins and Little Collins Streets). Mietta not only had a great restaurant upstairs (Jacques Reymond and other names "cheffed" there over the years), but the lounge downstairs was wonderfully comfortable for coffee or a drink – and to hear and see some terrific local artists over a wide range of singing, playing or just talking. And of course, Mietta was one of the original group who set up Residents 3000 – we used to meet there in the early days. But Concetta doesn't spend too much time looking back at the "good old days". She is still a vital artist, involved in a range of activities. She recently had a solo art exhibition of intricately detailed wall pieces, repurposing thousands of broken embellishments from garments collected by her son – owner of the "Shag" shops in Melbourne and Sydney!

She is a great Melbournian.

Seen here relaxing at home, Suki and Concetta also enjoy walking around the parks and Concetta with a favourite from her much-loved collection of oriental screens.
